

Blues Heaven festival 11 & 12 November in Arena Nord, Frederikshavn, Denmark, continues collaborating with Nordjyllands Trafikselskab & Nordjyske Jernbaner.

In mid-November, North Jutland is again invaded by blues and soul lovers worldwide, who come to experience a cornucopia of Grammy © and Blues Music Award winners.

In connection with the multi-award-winning blues and soul festival, many people are thinking about how to get to Arena Nord in Frederikshavn and not least back home after the concerts that last until 01:00.

The collaboration with Nordjyllands Trafikselskab (NT) & Nordjyske Jernbaner (NJ) means that an exceptional and unheard-of cheap weekend ticket is offered for only € EUR 20 (DKK 150), which is valid throughout the North Jutland Region (from Hadsund over to Struer and up to Skagen). The ticket is very popular for the many foreign guests who land at Aalborg Airport and who can hop on the bus the 5 minutes into Lindholm station, where the train to Frederikshavn departs twice an hour.

Blues Heaven festival organizer Peter Astrup says, "The ticket also opens up for the many accommodation options offered in the tourist-friendly North Jutland. The ticket is also valid for the two extra night buses that run at 01:45 from Arena Nord and stop in all the cities on the way to Aalborg and Skagen respectively. "

In addition to this NT & NJ ticket, the festival has also deployed hotel shuttle buses in Frederikshavn, which run both days from the hotels by the harbor area and the 2 km up to Arena Nord from late afternoon and return from midnight. This hotel shuttle bus ticket costs € EUR (DKK 50) per day.
